Tharawat Family Business Forum

The Tharawat Family Business Forum is an independent, membership network dedicated to the sustainability, innovation, and growth of MENA family businesses. The organisation was founded in 2006 by leading family-owned companies from across the Middle East, who shared a vision to build a strong peer community and platform for family businesses. Today, Tharawat plays an instrumental role in developing knowledge and expertise around family businesses in the region and beyond.

“Family firms are the backbone of the MENASA economy, their longevity and good business practices are essential for regional growth and development. Understanding family business legacy will enable us to draw valuable lessons for the future and create regional best practice.”

Farida El-Agamy
General Manager
Tharawat Family Business Forum

“The histories of individual family businesses and their founders are not only an essential part of the economic history of the MENASA region; they are also a fascinating prism through which to explore the region’s culture and its intertwinement with local, national, as well as global developments.”

Our Project

Family businesses are the pillars of economies in the Middle East, North Africa and South Asia (MENASA) and their sustainability is crucial to the region. We see in the history of family businesses an exceptional opportunity to gain insight into the economic and entrepreneurial history of the region.

Our Aims

Our project aims to capture the stories behind some of the leading regional family businesses. In so doing, we examine reasons for their longevity, explore correlations between the founder stories and the business durability and look at underlying factors for entrepreneurial success specific to the MENASA region.

Our Goals

UNDERSTAND THE HISTORY

Empirical academic research is being conducted to help explore the impact of family businesses on the region's economy.

HIGHLIGHT THE LEGACY

With our research, we aim to highlight the legacy and economic impact of selected family businesses on the region.

PRESERVE THE HERITAGE

We are in the process of building the first archive of family businesses in the MENASA, which will produce an invaluable repository for researchers and practitioners.

INSPIRE THE FUTURE

Our research findings will enable us to understand family business decision-making and develop models for the future
